I. OPEN DISASTERS/EMERGENCIES:

II. WEATHER:

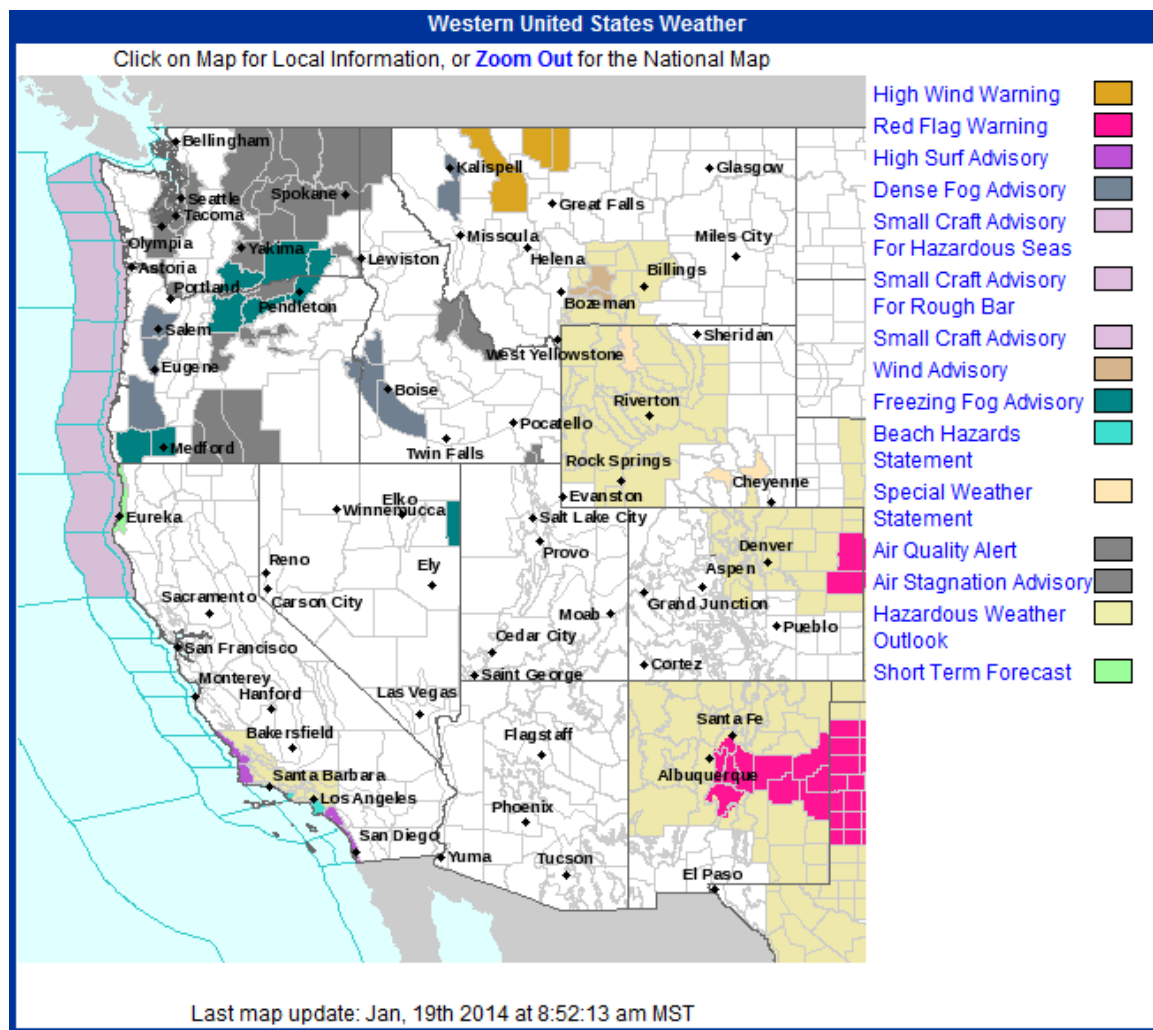

Northern California

Continuing high pressure over the West Coast will bring sunny skies and warm temperatures through the middle of next week. Although trending slightly cooler, afternoon highs will remain 10 to 20 degrees above normal. A weak disturbance Wednesday will have little effect on the region.

Southern California

A modest cooling trend will continue through Monday. Building high pressure aloft and offshore flow will bring some warming on Tuesday, and well above normal daytime temperatures will continue on Wednesday. Noticeable cooling is expected on Thursday as an upper level low pressure system drops into the great basin. This system will linger near the forecast area into the weekend.

Updated - NWS Winter Weather Outlook for California - 2013-2014

NWS Western Region has provided an update to the temperature and precipitation outlooks for the rest of this winter across California in a brief video (about 5 minutes).

Western Region is predicting no appreciable rainfall for the rest of the winter months statewide and warmer statewide temperatures than normally experienced.

The video has been shared via YouTube at <http://youtu.be/hG70dQt68vQ>

Some California Weather Forecast Offices (WFO) have also created short video presentations focusing on their Areas of Responsibility. These videos are each about two minutes long. The video links received so far are included below.

III. FIRES:

Overall Fire Risk:

Northern California

With unusually parched fuels and much more ground snow-free than is typical, Northern California will continue to be subject to initial attack activity and also continue to see increased risk for larger fires whenever in significant and/or widespread wind events. At this time, no "High Risk" has been issued, but all Predictive Service Areas will be predominantly "Dry" to "Very Dry" starting Saturday.

Southern California

A prolonged period of offshore flow, very warm temperatures and low Relative Humidity (RH) will continue to keep live and dead fuels very dry across the area. Most, if not all, of the district is reporting live fuel moisture below 60% and fuels will continue to be highly receptive to ignition. Extremely rapid rates of spread and long range spotting can be expected in the windy areas. The Colby fire exhibited near total consumption of fuels yesterday, which is indicative of the extremely low moisture levels in all fuel types. Lighter offshore flow this weekend may allow for some weak sea breezes in the afternoon, resulting in erratic winds and shifting flame fronts. Some moderate Initial Attack (IA) will be possible throughout the period. Resource demand will continue to be far above seasonal normal for the foreseeable future.

Preparedness Levels:

National Preparedness Level 1

Northern California

Preparedness Level 1 Multi-Agency Coordination System MACS Mode 2

Southern California

Preparedness Level 2 Multi-Agency Coordination System MACS Mode 2

IV. SIGNIFICANT ACTIVITY:

State

Drought 2014 (No change)

Governor Brown Declares Drought State of Emergency

On January 17, 2014, with California facing water shortfalls in the driest year in recorded state history, Governor Edmund G. Brown Jr. proclaimed a State of Emergency and directed state officials to take all necessary actions to prepare for these drought conditions.

In the State of Emergency declaration, Governor Brown directed state officials to assist farmers and communities that are economically impacted by dry conditions and to ensure the state can respond if Californians face drinking water shortages. The Governor also directed state agencies to use less water and hire more firefighters and initiated a greatly expanded water conservation public awareness campaign.

Situation:

The lack of winter rain and snowfall has resulted in drought conditions throughout the State. Some local jurisdictions are implementing mandatory conservation orders. Reservoir levels are down significantly from where they should be on average for this time of year. Severe impacts to municipal water supplies, agriculture (plants and livestock) and firefighting capabilities are likely in store for the State over the next few months. The Governor has established a Drought Task Force to oversee and coordinate the response to this event.

The Task Force continues to be in very close contact with local jurisdictions and state agencies to monitor the health of state's water, agriculture, and economy. On 01/03/14, the state conducted its first snow survey of the wet season and found more bare ground than snow. Statewide the snowpack water content is just 20 percent of average for this time of year.

On 01/12/14 the Task Force compiled a list of expectations, actions, impacts, funding sources and implementation timeframes by participating agencies/departments for a Governor's Brief which occurred on Monday, 01/13/2014.
